SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (AP) - The Better Business Bureau and other officials are warning residents against scam artists.

The Better Business Bureau is warning residents affected by storm damage to be wary of traveling workers offering their services. The Better Business Bureau says people should be cautious when dealing with the companies because many of them are not reputable.

Fire Chief Jim Sideras is also warning people about scam artists asking for donations for the police and fire departments. He says people should not be giving any money to people going door to door seeking donations for emergency responders.
