By: Chris Fankhauser Posted at: 10/30/2013 05:51 AM

(Chadron)-A public planning workshop will be happening in Chadron next month, and the public is invited to attend. It will be held on November 21, and will help create the comprehensive plan for the county which will be used to guide development for the community.

This meeting will also be used to gain input in building a regional development strategy for the Panhandle as an opportunity to frame how the area best uses the resources regionally. This will be part of a regional series of meetings for input also taking place in Gering, Sidney, and Alliance.

The meeting will be hosted by the Panhandle Area Development District and Dawes County Joint Planning and is open to anyone interested in working together for a brighter future.

It will be taking place that Thursday from 5:30-7:30 pm, in the Chadron High School Library. Snacks and refreshments will be provided.
