(CHADRON)-City of Chadron street crews have been hard at work with a variety of street paving projects. Street superintendent Terry Birnbaum says work is coming along nicely and nearing the asphalt stage. He explains which areas of town are getting some needed repairs.

The projects have entailed removing the previous street surface, base, and sub-base, then adding back a new base and sub-base, and finally adding a new three-inch asphalt surface. The city is able to grind, mill, and install the needed materials for the base and sub-base, but the asphalt requires installation by a company with the right equipment that the city does not own.

It won't be too long and street undertakings will be done for another season, and residents in these areas will have nice new streets to drive on. Birnbaum says the final phase of the projects will be wrapped up as soon as time allows.
