LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) - Robert Sternberg will make his first visit to Laramie next week since being named the new University of Wyoming president.

Sternberg is scheduled to visit UW Monday and Tuesday. He will meet with university leaders, tour the campus and introduce himself to student and faculty representatives.

Sternberg currently serves as provost and senior vice president at Oklahoma State University.

He was named UW's 24th president by the UW Board of Trustees on Feb. 26. He will take office July 1.

UW says Sternberg plans to travel around Wyoming to meet with various constituents and citizens later this year.
