(Chadron)- Although it isn't quite spring yet, some spring cleaning is taking place at a popular local hangout. Mike Groenewold with the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission says that crews are beginning a clean-up project at ChadronState Park, which will continue through the end of February.

The project will consist of felling and cutting up trees that were damaged in the West Ash wildfire last August. With the assistance of equipment operators, Games and Parks will be piling the trees and burning them daily as weather permits. No piles will be lit on weekends, but residents of the community may see smoke coming from ChadronState Park due to smoldering piles.

Anyone with any questions regarding the cleanup or burning of the slash piles can call ChadronState Park at 432-6167.
