RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) - A disagreement over the Chicago Bulls' victory over the Brooklyn Nets reportedly ended in a fight that sent a Rapid City man to the hospital.

Police spokeswoman Tara Heupel says that police were called to a fight at the Price Motel on Monday night. The men were reportedly arguing over the NBA playoff game.

Heupel says the victim, who was not identified, was "very intoxicated" and transported to Rapid City Regional Hospital with non-life threatening injuries.

Police say three men allegedly beat the man with their fists and hands. Authorities are still looking for the men.
