SCOTTSBLUFF, Neb. (AP) - The public is being invited to the unveiling of the relocated University of Nebraska Medical Center College of Nursing branch in Scottsbluff.

The open house from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. Thursday will show off new nursing classrooms, clinic skills laboratories and staff offices at the Western Nebraska Community College John N. Harms Advanced Technology Center.

The college had leased space at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Institute of Agricultural and Natural Resources' Panhandle Research and Extension Center since the mid-1990s. But the college opted to move when the extension center began renovations.
