Storms dropped more rain on parts of southeast Wyoming on Saturday, causing some minor flooding in and around the Cheyenne area.

The National Weather Service reported 2 to 3 inches of additional rain fell Saturday in areas already saturated with rain this week.

Water was flowing over U.S. 85 northeast of Cheyenne but not enough to close the highway.

Street flooding was reported in Cheyenne, along with parts of two city parks and areas of the F.E. Warren Air Force Base.

There were no reports of anyone being forced to flee their homes.
