(Scottsbluff)-The Western Nebraska Community College Cougar Palace will come alive with Native American culture and tradition on next week, when the Many Moccasins Dance Troupe takes the floor for a free one-night public performance. Sponsored by United Leaders for Cultural Diversity, the event, which will be held on Thursday, November 7, is aimed at celebrating Native American Heritage Month.

Hailing from Winnebago, NE, the Many Moccasins Dance Troupe is an ensemble of professional performers who utilize traditional Native American style of dance and incorporate their own unique theatrical twist.

This dance group has been performing for large audiences since its inception in 2001. After performing professionally for nine years, the Many Moccasins Dance Troupe now choreographs new and more contemporary performances. The shows typically include dancing, drumming, flute-playing, regalia, narration, and storytelling to educate the audience about Native American culture and history.

Using what they have learned throughout years of performing, the dance troupe includes props and groundbreaking audio to enhance their performances. This dance troupe now tours and performs to large audiences and sold-out crowds across the country.

Many Moccasins performs in the WNCC gym that day from 12:30 until 1:30 p.m. This free program is open to all students, staff and faculty as well as the community.
